GOODBY, FAIR GIRLS.

So Say the Employers of Pretty Typewriters and Amanuenses.

JEALOUS WIVES WON'T HAVE 'EM.

A Rich Young Pittsburger Not to be Caught by Foreign Nets.

THE GAY DUDES WHO ASK FOR ALMS

[CORRESPONDENCE OF THE DISPATCH.] NEW YORK, February 9 .- What has been for the past few years a boon to the average business man, lawyer, minister and newspaper correspondent-in fact to every person whose work requires extensive letter writing-is destined to meet with material opposition, if indeed not complete extinction. The pretty typewriter, one of the essentials of an every day office, is the object, and the employer's wife at home is the one who is waging war with a vengeance.

All these funny snaps, appearing from day to day in the comic columns of the papers, have resulted in a serious end for the feminine typewriter. It was only during the early part of the week that a certain broker's wife quietly informed her husband that he must dispense with the services of his stenographer and typewriter. The latter was an exceptionally apt manipulator of the machine, beside having a thorough knowledge of shorthand, making her doubly desirable in the capacity, but the poor girl possessed more than the average share of nature's charms, hence her removal. The broker, sorry as he was to let her go, endeavored to arrange with a Fourth avenue trader in Pittsburg to take her out West with him, as he had signified a desire for an amanueusis. The Pittsburger agreed to do so. He told his wife at the hotel when he returned to dinner, and pictured to her what a great load would be lifted off his shoulders by his new acquisition. "Young, pretty and small wages," added he, thinking his wife would

WHERE HE MADE HIS MISTAKE. Fatal words! A flash of indignant scorn snapped from his fair lady's eyes, which told him that he had better cancel the contract immediately or the placid domestic re-lations heretofore existing would soon be as turbulent as a steaming teapot. He therefore went straightway down to Wall street, where he said to the pretty girl that "un-foreseen circumstances" had prevented his carrying out his part of the contract. He professed great aunoyance at it, and apologized profusely.

This is only one instance I call to mind of the intervention of the dutiful wife be-tween the husband and employe; but it's odds that many a poor girl suffers injustice at the hands of frail-minded wives because the honest and willing worker is pretty. In Broadway's panorama yesterday was Mr. Edward Jackman, one of Pittsburg's handsome and wealthy young men. He is stopping at the Victoria, where he is a great favorite among the guests. Down here "Ned" is considered a great catch by the older female heads, who would fain put their daughters in the matrimonial mart. As is well known in Pittsburg, Mr. Jackman was the favored heir of his late father's munificent bequests, and his wealth is estimated at a half million, invested in Pittsburg and Allegheny real estate, beside his holdings of lucrative investments in bank stocks and bonds. It is whispered that he is engaged to a beautiful young East End lady, and that the nuptials are not far distant. Mr. Jackman is very fond of New York, and it is intimated that he will reside here perma-nently after be has satisfactorily arranged his Pittsburg business matters. MAKING HIS MARK.

Young Charlie Clarke, of East Penn avenue, is here for the winter, engaged in cultivating his musical talents. He is being in-structed by one of the most distinguished musicians in New York, both in the vocal and 1 understand that Mr. Clarke has developed a surprisingly strong tenor voice, and no doubt he will charmingly entertain home music lovers upon his return in the spring. As a diversion the young gentleman occasionally con-tributes a humorous gem to Judge, as he has shown a literary taste aside from his musical accomplishments. He will be re-membered by readers of THE DISPATCH as "See Ess Sea." Mr. Arkell, the proprietor of Judge, is his brother-in-law, and Russell Harrison is a great intimate of Mr. Clarke's.

No city can pride itself with having within its gates the greatest number of beggars; but New York, if she wishes to, could carry off the paim for the most decently dressed and well appearing mendicants. Late the other night I was hurrying through Park Row, which is brilliantly lighted from the glare of the electric lights on the postoffice, when a good-looking, neatly, in fact stylishly dressed stranger accosted me. As he spoke I thought he sought information about some street; but when I asked him to repeat his question, he plaintively pleaded for enough money to get a bed with. I was quite struck with his face and his man-ner of address; so I questioned him. He said he came here from Toronto, Canada, had looked in vain for a position, and was without a place to sleep. Of course it was the old stereotyped formula; but his appeartook enough interest in his parrative to advance him the price of a bed. He thanked me very obsequiously and trotted off into the darkness toward the bridge.

A NOTEWORTHY REMINDER.

The incident had almost been forgotten when I was "struck" by this same gentleman up on Broadway and Twenty-sixth street this morning. I recognized him, and after he had made his little speech I looked at him steadfastly, but silently. He evidently knew me as his outraged benefactor of a few nights before, for he sneaked off into the crowd. I asked a corner police-man if he knew him. He said he was a member of a gang of professional fellows who manage to dress well upon the alms solicited from the public. "The better a beggar is dressed now-a-days," said he, "the more successful is he with the gullible publio's purse. The repulsive, poverty-stricken creatures are avoided, from the fact of their filthy garments; but the dude solicitor is the boy for the 'jelly.'

Woman Receives a Pension as a Widow, Not Knowing She Had Been Divorced-A Strange Story of a Legal Problem.

CINCINNATI, February 9.—Assistant United States Attorney Harry Probasco has gone to Garden, O., to investigate a case of fraudulent pension that rests upon a very eurious circumstance. Sometime ago a pension was granted to Nancy Smith because she was the widow of a soldier. Not long ago the District Attorney was informed that Nancy Smith was not the widow of the soldier in question, but had been divorced from him many years before his death. Mrs. Smith was at once questioned, but she de-nied absolutely that she had been divorced from her husband. The records were searched and the decree of divorce was found, and she was confronted with it. She said that her husband was a worthless fellow, and was wasting her property in dissi-pation. She consulted with lawyers, and they, in some way, enabled her to administer the property as a single woman. She thought it might be possible that they had obtained a divorce for her without her knowledge. She remembered testifying in court to the character of her husband and to his treat-ment of her, but of any talk of divorce she had no recollection. As proof of this she says she lived on with the man who she supposed to be her husband, keeping him as straight as possible and treating him in every way as her husband. This case is probably without a parallel in the records of pension cases. The question is whether the Government will be able to prosecute its case and obtain the money which has al-ready been paid out if the woman's story is 4 Strike of the Yard Men on the New York Central Railroad.

PEPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCE. SUSPENSION BRIDGE, N. Y., February 9 .- The yard men of the New York Central at Suspension Bridge struck this morning and have been out all day. They number between 40 and 50 and their grievance is that they do not receive the same pay on Sunday as in the other large yards of the company. All yard employes at Canan-daigua, Auburn, Niagara Falls, Batavia, Tonawanda, Buffalo and Rochester, who work on Sunday, receive two days' pay. This has been refused them. The men stated their grievance to Freight Agent F. K. Paddock at the bridge, but he neglected to mention it to the officials of the road. This morning the men refused to go to work and there has been nothing done in the yards to-day. There is a feeling of dissatis-faction all along the line and the recent action of the engineers at Buffalo has had the effect to stimulate this feeling. It would not be surprising if a strike of large dimen-sions would be precipitated soon on the
